Howard County Local Health Improvement Coalition Receives State Funding to Continue Food Security Initiatives

Columbia, MD – The Howard County Local Health Improvement Coalition (LHIC) has received a $19,400 award from the Maryland Department of Health's Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Control to implement activities aimed at addressing food security in Howard County identified by an LHIC committee during the first year of the project. The funds are in addition to those received in 2022 to support the establishment of the LHIC food security committee and the development of a work plan to address the needs of the community.

Literacy

- ☐ Write to convey a sense of audience that is inclusive
- ☐ Use personal pronouns to speak directly to the reader, such as "your benefits" rather than speaking about the reader in third person as in "the insured."
- ☐ Use active voice and a friendly, conversational tone. Contractions are okay.
- ☐ Draft paragraphs with short, simple sentences.
- ☐ Avoid jargon and acronyms. Spell out unfamiliar acronyms and define or explain

Maryland Clear Writing and Plain Language Checklist*

The Maryland Consumer Health Information Hub law requires state and local agencies to use plain language in public communications about health, safety, health insurance, and social services benefits information. Plain language is a set of techniques that help the audience understand the first time they read or hear the information.

This checklist will help you see if your content is written in plain language and presented in ways that are clear and actionable. You can use the checklist for any written content. Writing clearly will help the Maryland public understand what agencies are trying to communicate.

Who is the audience for this content? _____

When reviewing your content, take these three steps.

1. Look Carefully
   - Read through the content and the checklist. The more items you can check, the more likely the audience will understand and take action on the content.
   - Are there terms that readers don't typically use in every day speech? If so, try and replace these words with more common words.
2. Read it Aloud
   - Does the content sound too formal? Adjust the wording to be friendly and conversational.
   - Are the sentences long and hard to follow? Shorten the sentences so that only one thought is presented in each sentence.
   - Does the writing flow smoothly?
3. Test It (testing is a best practice and especially important for new content and in advance for emergency/time sensitive content that can't be tested in the moment)
   - Show the content to a few people who represent the audience you are writing for.
   - After reading, can they tell you in their own words
     - what the content means?
     - the recommended action(s)?
     - the main message
   - If not, re-write and test again.

Checklist: Use as a guide to be sure your content is clear and actionable for the intended audience.

Audience Focus

- ☐ Choose titles or visuals so readers know what the content is about at a first glance.
- ☐ Choose titles, visuals, and introductory words so the audience knows who the content is for at a first glance.
- ☐ Begin with the most important message and order topics in ways that make sense to the audience.

Plain language checklist

- Developed by MD workgroup
- Based on public agency experience
- Use guide to ensure your content is clear and actionable for your intended audience

BECOME A COMMUNITY NAVIGATOR
We cannot end hunger without addressing its underlying causes.
Join the Maryland Food Bank and fight hunger in your community
Learn how to address the root causes of food insecurity through access to government benefits (like SNAP) and community resources.
We need community navigators to help us expand our impact. We're looking for people who want to go out into their community and help their neighbors. We're looking for people who like to talk to people. People who will listen and understand what barriers to food security a neighbor is facing and will connect them to services that can help them overcome those challenges.
NAVIGATORS RECIEVE
